SSU community mourns the loss of a student

by Lauren Weis, staff writer

Members of the Salisbury State community were deeply grieved to learn of the death of SSU senior Jeffrey Selser.

Selser, a communication arts major, was found dead in his home in the early morning telephoned several family members and friends, alerting them to the situation. They in turn alerted the police. The officers arrived too late to prevent Selser from taking his own life.

Selser, known as "Skeeter" to his friends, was a member of hours of Feb 1 by members of the Salisbury Police.

Although the official autopsy report has not yet been returned by the state medical examiners office, it was apparent that Selser took his own life with a .22 caliber pistol.

Police arrived on the scene at approximately two am to discover Selser's body. He several campus organizations, including ROTC, Men's Rugby and the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

Brad Hudson, SAE president, said, "Jeff was a good man and he is going to be missed deeply by the chapter. Our sympathies go out to the family."

and his funeral was held at Holloway Funeral Home on Snow Hill Road on Friday, Feb 4. A memorial service was also held on the SSU campus last Tuesday. Both the funeral and memorial were attended by a large number of friends and family. Jo Jo Benson, SSU senior, played Rugby with Selser. Benson said, "He gave 100 percent, actually 110 percent. We all saw how much he loved the game. He got along with everyone on the team and was naturally friendly and nice. [His death] touched and hurt a lot of us."

Another friend, senior Michele Burgess, had known Jeff since she was "nine or ten." She said, "Jeff was a really good guy. He touched a lot of people. I think he had a lot more friends than he realized.

We were involved in high school theater together. I think we're all really going to miss him. We all want to know why this happened."

Salisbury hosts Congressional Institute retreat

by Janet Scouten, staff writer

During winter term, over 150 Republican members of Congress spent the weekend of Jan. 27-29 at Salisbury State University. They ate food that students eat, slept in beds where students sleep and grappled with issues facing America today.

SSU was chosen out of 43 other colleges and universities within a three-hour drive of Washington, D.C. to host the annual retreat of The Congressional Institute. In years past, the retreat has been hosted by schools such as Princeton University.

Edward Vickers, director of Conference Planning, said that SSU was chosen to host this year's retreat because of its facilities, hospitality and academic environment, as well as its residence halls and food.

Maryland First District Representative Wayne Gilchrest deemed the retreat to be a "very productive weekend."

Gilchrest said, "The members [of Congress] compared SSU to other schools they've visited and determined that this was the best conference they've ever had.

"The environment created by the University was very positive and conducive to insights as to where the Republican party should go."

He explained that during their meetings at SSU, the members of Congress discussed and debated such issues as welfare reform, health care and the crime bill.

They also took some time out for a few pick-up basketball games with winter term students.

"Quite frankly, [the members of Congress] were very nice, genuine people," said Vice President of Administration Joe Gilbert.

Vickers said, "I heard many, many favorable comments about the school." He explained that hosting the retreat was a great opportunity to expose the campus to people from all over the country.

The representatives were housed in St. Martin and Chesapeake Halls.

In preparation for the Congressional visit, the University purchased sheets, bedspreads, towels and washcloths. It also purchased televisions to put in the dorm rooms.

According to Vickers, these purchases were capital investments. He explained that Conference Planning is "looking at upscaling its service."

The TVs are now a part of the housing inventory and will DiSylvestro said that the menus for the congressmen were the same as the standard menus for students.

According to Gilbert, the fact that SSU was chosen to hold the retreat "is a pat on the back" for the University. He also said that The Congressional Institute hopes to hold future retreats here, if be rented out to future conferences. They will also be used to replace broken TV's in residence hall lounges said Vickers.

"Quite frankly, [the members of Congress] were very nice, genuine people."

Congressman Gilchrest said that many of the representatives commented that both their accommodations and the food at SSU were excellent.

Condom Week promotes AIDS awareness

by Ali Moyer, staff writer

Valentine's Day may have been celebrated yesterday, however this whole week (Feb. 14-21) has been designated National Condom Week. This event is designed to promote the use of latex condoms for individuals who maintain sexual relationships.

National Condom Week is not a new idea. In fact, a group of college students from the University of California,

"A school the size of SSU has an average of 12 to 20 students who are HIV positive."

- Jennifer Berkman, director of Student Health Services

Berkeley began this tradition in 1978. Currently, the Condom Resource Center in Oakland, California sends out information packets to more than 350 universities, family planning centers and pharmacies nationwide. National Condom Week is designed to not only focus on the issue of AIDS and how it is spread, but also in the spread of other sexually transmitted diseases (STDs).

Currently there are over 12 million cases of other STDs. Included in these STDs are gonorrhea, chlamydia, herpes and hepatitis B. Of the cases reported, more than two thirds are among people under the age of 25. The rapid spread of Prevention (CDC), has also instituted a campaign to encourage consistent and correct latex condom usage among persons between the ages of 18-25. The name of the campaign is Prevention Marketing Initiative.

"This campaign is geared towards youth under the age of 25. Radio and television spots will be used to encourage abstinence, and correct and consistent condom use," said John Hammond of the CDC.

Right now, many American teenagers are engaging in behaviors that put them at risk of acquiring HIV infection. Studies conducted by the CDC have reported that the average age for first sexual experiences is 16 years old.

Additionally, 45 percent of the sexually active high school students do not use a condom on a regular basis.

In September 1993, the CDC reported over 12,000 AIDS cases in young people between the ages of 20-24.

Although abstinence is the only fool proof way to protect yourself from getting infected with the HIV virus and other STDs, using a condom correctly and 100 percent of the time can considerably lower your risk.

According to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, using a condom correctly includes using a new condom for each act of intercourse and putting the condom on as soon as erection occurs, but before any sexual contact.

Additionally, it is important to use adequate lubrication. A water based lubricant offers the best defense against STDs.

Withdrawing soon after ejaculation also can prevent pregnancies and the spread of the HIV and AIDS virus.

According to Jennifer Berkman, director of Student Health Services, "A school the size of SSU has an average of 12 to 20 students who are HIV positive." However, Health Services does not have statistics on the number of SSU students with the HIV virus.

Berkman said, "There are two STD cases a week seen in the Health Center." Among the most common are chlamydia and herpes.

Health Services are doing what they can to help alleviate the spread of STDs and the HIV virus around campus.

Information about STDs, HIV and AIDS is provided in the Health Center.

Three for Free, a service that provides free condoms for students, is still available. You can discretely obtain three free condoms from the Health Center by entering a door on the backside of Holloway Hall.

"We respect the students' right to privacy," said Berkman. "If students use the back door, they won't even have to enter into the Health Center."

Salisbury has low inflation

declines which are excluded from the Consumer Price Index by BLS. However, the study found a lower rate of inflation in Salisbury in six of seven spending categories, which suggests that local priced did indeed rise less rapidly in late 1993.

In addition to estimating the rate of inflation in Salisbury, AEW also attempted to compare the local cost of living with that of Baltimore County. A major study of Salisbury and Baltimore County prices was conducted during November focusing on grocery store items, services, shelter and two durable goods.

Most grocery store items were found to be less expensive in Salisbury than in Baltimore County. The only category in which Salisbury prices were generally higher was fresh fruit and vegetables. In seven of eight service categories prices were at least 20 percent higher in Baltimore County than in Salisbury. The one exception in this group was apartment rentals. Based on a sample of apartment rents, shelter appears to cost 50 percent more in Baltimore County. Finally, AEW found new cars and trucks to be slightly more expensive in Salisbury and coffins to be substantially more expensive.

AEW also conducted a comparison of grocery and housing prices in Salisbury and Hagerstown during mid-September, which suggests little difference in the cost of living between the two cities.

The Applied Economics Workshop is intended to be a source of useful economic information to the community, which also provides Salisbury State students with applied experience in the field of economics. In conducting the cost of living study, students employed the same methods used by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The members of the 1993 Applied Economics Workshop are Kent Dennis, Russ Hewitt, Steve Russell, Kara Towers and Carl Tyree. Dr. Benjamin B. Greene, Jr. served as data base administrator and advisor to the workshop.

POLICY ON CLOSING DUE TO INCLEMENT WEATHER

Should inclement weather result in classes being canceled, information will be given to all local radio and television stations. Students can receive information by listening to local stations.

The institutional policy with regard to closing is that unless there are the most dire circumstances the institution will remain open for business. Students, staff and faculty members must exercise their best judgment about whether they attend class or report to work. Different conditions prevail for each individual under inclement weather situations so the decision should be essentially an independent one.

If you do not hear an announcement about cancellation of classes, then classes and events will be held as scheduled. Please do not call Public Safety about cancellation notices so that the office can assist with emergency needs.

"I love Boise"

College students graduating this year may want to consider moving to Boise, ID, Nashville, TN, or even Springfield, MO.

Believe it or not, these are the three most popular large cities Americans moved to in 1993, reports Ryder, the nation's largest truck rental and leasing company, in its annual survey of where Americans move each year. Ryder lists large cities as those with more than 100,000 residents.

If looking for a smaller city to move to, graduates should consider Grand Junction, CO, Jackson, TN and Billings, MT. These are the top three most popular small cities Americans moved to in 1993, the survey reports. Ryder lists small cities as those with less than 100,000 residents.

"Our survey indicates that Americans are moving to small and mid-sized cited outside the Northeast where job opportunities and economic growth appear to be on the rise," says Jerry Riordan, president, Ryder Consumer Truck Rental. "Ryder dealers report that consumers cite affordable housing, job opportunities, and better quality of life as the main reasons for moving to these cities."

Date: Thursday February 10, 1994. Flipping through the channels, I notice a man in a suit standing in front of a map. He informs me that the three inches of sleet, ice and snow we have already received is going to magically turn into five inches by morning.

Fast forward. It's now Friday morning 8:30. My roommate has informed me that while the mess outside has indeed deepened, the university has remained open. I think to myself, (I really should not be thinking this early in the morning, but I've been known to throw caution to the wind) "Good, I'll be able to go and take care of a few things that I need to do today."

Upon my arrival to campus, I discover that the Cashier's Office is closed for some unbeknownst reason. Deciding that best course of action would be to go to The Bookrack to purchase all those books I have yet to buy, (I am an art major) I arrive in the University Center to find a replay of my experience at the Cashier's Office. Except this time there is an explanation: there was a flood from the night before. Now that I have been thoroughly let down twice, I make my way to my office here at the Flyer. It is here that my story really begins.

Along with my previously mentioned misadventures, it is brought to my attention that several professors have canceled class, understandably, because of the weather and parts of campus have been closed off because of the danger of falling branches. This leaves one obvious question: why is the University still open? This school was the only school in the entire state, kindergarten, elementary, middle, high school and colleges, to remain open! Now, while my adventurous trips to various campus offices were not major setbacks in my life, students who made the journey from Cambridge, Easton and other distant locations just to find their class canceled may have a different view. Since this opinion was written the day before the paper was laid out and I am just a photography editor, I was unable to interview anybody in a position of authority. Nor was I able to interview any of those affected by the random cancellations, but I do feel that it was a poor decision on the part of those in charge. Maybe the administration needs to examine their policy regarding closure of campus. When a larger university, 20 minutes south of SSU, UMES, closes due to weather, logic and common sense would be for this school to do the same thing.

Just a pipe dream

by Raj Kaup, guest columnist

The following is a transcript of a future sports telecast, approximately one year from today:

John Madden: You are looking at a packed house here at Cobo Arena in Detroit, where we are awaiting the start of this controversial new competition in sports, obstacle figure skating.

Hello, I'm John Madden here with Peggy Fleming. So, what do you think, Peggy? Are we looking at the future of professional figure skating?

Peggy Fleming: Well, it certainly adds more excitement to the sport, I must say. Experts are speculating that this telecast will receive ratings far surpassing the Super Bowl. That never happened during my days as a skater.

JM: And what better place to premiere obstacle figure skating than Cobo Arena, the place of its origin?

And who better to be the first participant than Ms. Kerrigan herself? Just look at her out on the ice, Peggy. Her right leg's never shown so much vitality.

PF: John, I must add that this event calls for 100 percent total concentration. Nancy has to perform on the ice with grace and beauty, as well as overcome the obstacles that come her way.

JM: Well, it looks like Nancy is ready, as well as the judges. So ... here she goes.

PF: Alright, she's starting off with her first jump combination. It'll just be a single spin to warm up ... And it's good. Perfect as always for Nancy.

JM: Listen to the crowd cheer her on. It sure is a thrill to watch her in action.

PF: Now she is about to pull off her triple axle. Here she goes ... She's got it! Three and a half turns followed by a perfect toe loop.

How much time does she have left in this "grace period," John?

JM: Just a couple more seconds. Three ... two ... one... Grace period is over, and out comes Shawn Eckardt!

PF: We appreciate the Denver authorities for allowing Shawn Eckardt, Tonya Harding's former bodyguard, out of his cell in order to take part in this event.

JM: Shawn Eckardt, chasing down the still electrifying Nancy Kerrigan. Incidentally, the pipe in his left hand was furnished by Bethlehem Steel, proud sponsor's of tonight's event.

PF: It's amazing to me that a man of that proportion could stand on the ice, let alone skate with such grace. How much do you think, John? About 350 pounds?

JM: I understand from his manager, Jeff Gillooly, that he picked up ice skating during the time he spent with the C.I.A.

Well, Shawn is about to make his first move against Nancy. It looks like a low swing at her right leg. Boy, that's one thing about Eckardt, Peggy, he sure hates to waste any time.

Here he goes ... She jumps and he misses! Oooooooo, just nanometers away from her leg.

PF: Of course, Nancy was forced to turn in a "three" formation which is a no-no in regular figure skating, but, in this case, the judges are more lenient given her situation.

JM: I understand that Tonya Harding is present here at Cobo Arena to view the spectacle.

PF: Well, you are half right there, John. If we can just turn the cameras to where ... Ah, there she is. See for yourself, America. Tonya Harding, serving refreshments and concessions behind section J in the arena, all part of her 200 hours of community service.

JM: Back to the ice rink, is it me Peggy, or has Nancy forgotten parts of her routine already?

PF: You are absolutely right, John. She seems to be concentrating more on resisting injuries than on performing her routine. That's the challenge I was talking about earlier in the broadcast.

JM: She's about to do a death drop, which may be taken literally because here comes Eckardt, and ... Ooooooo, he's got her. Yep, he's got her. She's down.

PF: Of course, Shawn will be penalized for high sticking, a stipulation in the rulebook suggested by Gordie Howe. But it doesn't matter because it's all over.

JM: It's too bad. She was seconds away from making the distance. While judges are tabulating the scores, medical aid has stepped in to service Ms. Kerrigan.

The cartoon Life In Hell is currently being shipped to us. It should return to our publication next week. We apologize for the disappointment.

Letters to the Editor should be submitted by Wednesday for printing in the following week. Letters will be edited to fit space constraints.

To avoid this from happening, writers can keep their letters to about or less than 300 words, a length which results in about 9 inches of column text. Once received by the Flyer, all letters become property of the student newspaper. Letters to be printed will be chosen on the basis of timeliness and relevance.

Letters to the Editor

Welcome Back, Fellow SSU Neighbors

We are back once again, ready to slog our way through another semester of difficult assignments and more vexing social conditions. Winter break has not been kind to our community, as we have lost two members. As difficult as it sometimes is, we must press onward, dealing with the myriad of problems confronting us in our daily routines.

When we departed last semester, I left you with a rather biting commentary on the conditions here at Salisbury State. I hope that at least some people here realized the truth behind it. Apathy is the gravest social condition of our generation, a condition which we hold no direct blame for, except that we haven't tried to do anything about it (of course we're apathetic about our apathy...).

While the majority of Americans did not support President Clinton's election in 1992, I think that it is time we rally behind what has become the basic theme of his presidency: "The Great American Community." This IS NOT A PARTISAN, liberals only thing: to truly build a community, we need support from all our members, including those who dispute what the majority (or those in power) wants to do. Certainly we all could benefit from a greater sense of unity and community, and I believe that we can start here on campus.

There were many well documented incidents of hatred and antipathy that occurred last semester; let's strive to not have those repeated this semester. Let's all try to work together in some fashion to deal with the problems facing us, whatever you feel they are. The only way to change something is to try to fix it. If you don't want people thinking you're apathetic, show them you are not!!!

Good luck,
Todd Matthews

Please Buckle Up

In recognition of the Maryland Chiefs of Police Association "Seat Belt Awareness Months", I urge all of the members of our university community to "buckle up" when driving or riding as a passenger in a motor vehicle.

Statistics have shown that traffic deaths rank as the number one killer of Americans between the ages of six months to 32 years, and that the probability of being involved in a motor driven vehicle accident is 86 percent during a lifetime.

Therefore, it seems only prudent to make every effort to ensure personal safety for drivers and passengers through the use of seat belts.

Please, "buckle up."

Thanks,

Sgt. Carlton "Toby" Tobias
Crime Prevention Officer

WANTED: A refrigerator contractor with electrical expertise

In October (four very long months ago) the freezer unit in our Chesapeake kitchen was punctured and began leaking freon. We called maintenance immediately upon hearing the hiss and were told it was just the compressor clicking off. We asked about everyone's food and were told that it would be fine.

The next morning the fridge was really warm, so we called maintenance again. Six hours later, maintenance finally arrived. (They're hard to track down in an emergency.) The maintenance man then decided that our freezer was indeed punctured and leaking freon all over our food. The entire cluster lost all of our food. Since most of us weren't on the meal plan, a lot of food (and money) was destroyed. To make matters worse, our cluster was filled with the lovely aroma of freon, a very harmful gas that causes third degree burns.

We did receive a replacement fridge, but it can't even compare in size to our damaged one, and it didn't have a freezer. With no freezer space and no meal plans, we begged maintenance to fix our refrigerator as soon as possible.

Well, it is now FOUR months later. The fall semester has ended, winter term has come and gone, and we have started a new semester. Guess what? The refrigerator that we pay to use is still broken! We have called maintenance many times—but still nothing. They haven't even done a thing to the fridge since we have moved back in. We have no idea what we have to do to get maintenance to completely fix our fridge. Our ideas are to picket the maintenance building (we are making signs now) or to get it fixed ourselves and bill them.

Why has this taken so long? We paid our housing bill, which included the use of our refrigerator. If this doesn't get taken care of soon (within the month), we want compensation! We have been living for four months without something we paid for.

(We want to thank Mike Burton for giving us his compact refrigerators and talking to us about what he has found out.)

Signed,
Tina Fluharty &

Bad Lead Story

I am disappointed with your choice to make the article "Shelley's Circle Bar closes down for one month" in the December 7 issue of the Flyer your lead story. The closing of a local bar does not in any way affect campus life. The fact that some SSU students frequent this or any bar is not something that we as a school should be proud of or in any way glamorize. Remember, it is not just students, but the public including visitors and prospective students that read the Flyer. As the official school paper, the Flyer has the responsibility to portray our school to its many readers in a positive light.

Most importantly, we must all remember that alcohol can kill, does kill, and has killed just a few months back on this very campus. Are lessons so painfully learned forgotten so easily?

Sincerely,
Helen Woods

PF: It looks like the judges are ready with their scores, John.

JM: For Nancy Kerrigan, there's a 6.6, a 6.4, a 7.0 and another 6.4.

PF: That is not bad considering the challenges of this sport. And here comes Shawn Eckardt's score. A 4.4, a 4.7, a 4.5 and what? An 8.6?

JM: I gotta explain, Peggy. We just got word that one of the judges is a former member of the L.A.P.D. If that is true, he'll probably be suspended from the proceedings a little later on.

PF: Nevertheless, Nancy Kerrigan has pulled through and become the first champion of obstacle figure skating.

JM: Well, we gotta pause for station identification, but there's still more obstacle figure skating ahead. So keep it here on FOX, the network that's cornering the sport's market.

CAMPUS LIFE

New coffee shop opens in Salisbury

by Garrett McGlothlin, staff writer

The Stonemill Book and Bean Co. is downtown Salisbury's newest attraction drinks are available, along with a variety of coffees and teas, all at very reasonable prices. The atmosphere of the Stonemill is earthy and urbane. Words like chic and avant garde come to mind, until you remember that you are still in Salisbury.

"You should come on a number of nights to really get the feel of the place," said part owner, Bonnie Farkasfalvy. "The atmosphere changes depending on what day you come."

Wednesday night is open mic night and poets are invited to speak, read poetry or play music.

Friday nights are reserved for live music, usually performed acoustically. Both the open mic and the bands begin around 8 pm. Seating is available for approximately 40 people, but there is enough standing room to accommodate many more.

The other nights of the week are left for patrons to sit, study, talk, browse, eat and drink.

Of the Stonemill's atmosphere, SSU student Thor Peterson said, "I like it, but its (continued on page 10)

"Books": Yeah, I went there once

by Jennifer Evans, staff writer

With the start of a new semester, my editors decided to send me out to write about something new, something different, something exciting and just a tad risqué. They sent me to the Adult Book and Video Store on Rt. 13.

Come on now, you all know the place. It's located on the killer curve on Rt. 13, right down from the big, orange, neon "Hitch's Insurance" arrow sign. The store's only sign says "Books, Magazines, and Newspapers."

Well, this definitely was something different. So, I slipped on my latex gloves and extra sturdy waterproof boots, and went inside to have a look around.

It is important to note that one of the first signs that a customer sees upon entering the store explains that you must be at least 18 years or older to enter. I do personally know some people who have been carded upon entering, although I was not.

Upon entering, I realized that the store actually had very bright lighting, and seemed to be rather clean and orderly. It is not the dark, dirty sex shop that some people believe it to be.

I kind of talked to the manager, "kind of" meaning that he said about three sentences to me after I explained why I was there. Those three things were, "Can I help you?" "She [the owner?] makes money," and "The clientele are everyday people."

So basically I was left on my own to explore. I was not alone in the store, there were about four other people besides me and the manager. However, I was the only female. At least, the only one that you didn't have to inflate.

For all of you curious readers who have never been in the store, they have a large inventory. There are plenty of videos, both for sale and rental. Plus, there are magazines which cater to basically every sexual lifestyle, preference, or fetish.

Now if you are looking for something with more of a hands on type of appeal, there are plenty of inflatable or plastic sexual, hmm... what's the word I'm looking for, oh, devices. And they are very lifelike in appearance!

There are also plenty of sex toys, including a variety of handcuffs, and the "Nice and Naughty" bondage pack, which seemed to be on special the day of my visit.

I have been told that there are coin operated movies in the back, but I was not quite daring enough to research that area of the store.

Some of you are probably saying "Jenn, I'm not ready to dive so deep into the world of sexual paraphernalia, I just want to get my feet wet." Well, the store also offers a large selection of body oils, lotions, and gels which come in different colors and flavors.

They also stock an unusual selection of condoms that you might not find in your ordinary drugstore. They had some that were colored, neon, or flavored, including strawberry or licorice.

Of course, we all know that I am not the only person here from SSU who has ventured into the Adult Book and Video Store, so I started asking around.

Ironically, it seemed that most of the people I talked to have been to the store. The most common reply was "Yeah, I went there once."

Senior Melissa Fransen said that "it was kind of like a Salisbury field trip, and I thought it was a fun place to go. It was interesting."

As with many people, curiosity seemed to be the driving force behind their trip, not a shopping list of must have items.

David Johnson, a sophomore, said, "I'm all for adult book stores." Another student, who wished to remain anonymous, said he thinks "It's grand. My friend's and I used to go in as we walked home from parties on Mitchell Street." He also said that they never really bought anything, but that they did watch the 25 cent movies in the back of the store.

So if you are looking for something a little wilder here in Salisbury, perhaps the Adult Book and Video Store should be next on your list of explorations. Just remember, keep an open mind, have fun and always play it safe.

New coffee shop opens too clean." It is also nicely decorated and well lit. To some this is good news; to others it may prove discouraging.

The Stonemill is not the darkened, cirro-smoke clouded coffee house that some students might yearn for. It is however a place for people to come together and mix. It embodies an idea that is scarce these days, the concept of community. The Stonemill Book and Bean Co. creates a public space where opportunities for discussion and performance are available and encouraged.

Parking is available in the public lot located next to the Salisbury Public Library. The Stonemill is open from 8 am to 11 pm every day, except for Sunday when it is open from noon to 5 pm.

Spend the summer in Austria

a special to the Flyer

The University of New Orleans will sponsor its 18th annual International Summer School in Innsbruck, Austria during the summer of 1994.

Over 250 U.S. and European students as well as some 30 faculty/staff members will experience life and learning in the magnificent setting of the towering Tirolean Alps in the "Heart of Central Europe."

Participants can earn up to 10 semester hours of credit (fully transferable according to the usual rules), selected from over 50 courses offered in a wide variety of subject areas.

Courses focus primarily on the cultural, historical, social, political, business and economic issues of U.S./European relations and address the theme Democracy in Europe: Problems and Prospects.

All instruction is in English, with field trips and European guest lectures as integral parts of the academic program. In addition to distinguished guests from the U.S. and Austria, the faculty is comprised of professors from the Universities of New Orleans, Florida, Georgia and Vienna.

"Academically, the overall learning is just great," said Dr. Guenter Bischof, a native Tirolean who is now of the faculty of the University of New Orleans. "A student may read less, but see much more.

It is a true living educational experience.

During the summer, students are housed in the Studenthaus at the 300-year-old University of Innsbruck, which is only a short walk from the many inns, cafes and beer gardens in the few hours.

The Uno-Innsbruck International Summer School will convene with gala opening ceremonies on the third day of July and will end on August 13, 1994. For those who wish to enrich their European experience further, Uno offers

Three-day weekends offer ample time for students to travel to many different destinations in Europe, to hike in the alps and even to ski the nearby glaciers.

"You don't have to go very far to see someplace that is very different," said Meg Hanks, a former participant. From Innsbruck, the efficient Eurail system reaches all of Austria and much of Europe within a

SPORTS Jefferson second in conference rebounding

by Mike Beardslee, Staff
Writer

At six feet and three inches tall, and weighing only 177 pounds, Kyle Jefferson doesn't look like an imposing inside player for the men's basketball team of Salisbury State University. Yet Jefferson, who night after night is matched up against taller and heavier players, is second in the Catholic Athletic Conference in rebounding with a 9.1 average. He is also third on the team in scoring at 17.3 points per game, behind Dameon Ross and Craig Blackmon, who is injured.

This is Jefferson's first year as a starter for the team. He says playing with Andre Foreman and Kevin Cromer has really helped his game. "They make you play hard and they make you play smart. It always helps when you go against tough competition every day in practice." "I've really had to step it up this year. I've had to be a leader, and I've tried to help the younger guys."

Kyle believes that his improved performance is due to a better jumpshot which he developed in the off-season, and the hours he's spent in the weight room. "I've put on 22 pounds since I've been here."

Six times this season his jumpshot has given Jefferson the title of leading scorer for the Gulls. And 10 times he has been the leading rebounder for the Gulls.

Coach Ward Lambert said, "Kyle plays hard, and he's aggressive and confident. We can always count on him every night to produce. He's done it all for us. If there were a heart category for stats, he'd be in it."

Jefferson, a junior accounting major, says that he plans to take the CPA exam after graduation.

Men's basketball team on a hot streak

by Mike Beardslee, Staff
Writer

The scene was February fifth in Maggs Gym. Tom Wolfe hit two key three pointers late in the second period, while Dameon Ross had one of his best games of the season. Ross tallied 24 points, ten rebounds, seven assists and no turnovers as the Gulls sealed their third straight victory by defeating Lincoln, 86-81.

The men's basketball team improved to 8-10 with the win, and they're looking to put the month of January behind them.

And with good reason. January was a month of cancellations and postponements, a time of struggle and injury. One February game and two of the January games were called off because of inclement weather. The Holy Family game has been rescheduled for the 18th of February, while the Beaver game has been put off until the 28th. The Wesley game, which was to have been played just this past Thursday, has been put off until the 21st.

In addition to the postponements, there have been many injuries. Josh Mitchell, who was expected to put up big numbers early in the season, has been hampered by numerous ankle sprains. Craig Blackmon was lost for the season when he went down with a foot injury in the final game of the fall semester.

Despite all this, the team has kept its hopes high, and they're finally beginning to see daylight. Point guard Tom Wolfe is shooting particularly well, while Ross seems to be his old All-Conference self again. Forward Kyle Jefferson leads the team in rebounding and minutes played, and has been one of the most consistent players all season.

Things seemed to come together in the game against Lincoln on January 22. The Gulls lost 81-82, but they played well. The momentum carried over into the next game against Mary Washington, where SSU won 108-78 to kick off their current streak. The Gulls then defeated archrival Frostburg State (10-5) by a score of 88-80.

"We're hot right now," said Coach Lambert. "We've really jelled as a team. The guys have matured, and we can pull out some close games that we probably couldn't have pulled out earlier in the season."

At present, Dameon Ross leads the Gulls with a 21.9 scoring average, while Craig Blackmon is second at 20.4 ppg and Kyle Jefferson is third with 17.3 ppg. Jefferson is also the second leading rebounder in the Capitol Athletic Conference, averaging 9.1 boards a game.

The Gulls are going to need every rebound and every loose ball if they expect to make the NCAA Division III tournament. They need to win all of their remaining games, and even then it's a longshot. However, a strong finish will almost guarantee them a spot in the East Coast Athletic Conference tournament. Should they make this tournament, they would play four teams from the Southern division of the Conference—mostly Maryland, Pennsylvania, and southern New Jersey teams.

The men's basketball team swings into action on Wednesday, February 16, against Columbia Union on their home court. The Gulls next appearance in Maggs Gym will be on Saturday, February 19, where they face Chowan.

Local athletes are role models too

by Mary Yankosky, guest columnist

I would like to pose a question, but before I do, take a moment and consider what the following passage means. It was written by a promising young athlete on the verge of stardom.

To Any Athlete

"There's a wide-eyed little fellow who believes you're always right. And his ears are always open and he watches day and night. Because you are setting an example every day in all you do, for the little boy who's waiting to grow up and be like you."

I am not going to tell you the author at this point. However, many of you may know who wrote that phrase.

Let's investigate this for a moment. In essence the above passage says that no matter what kind of athlete you are, you are a "role model." College athletes as well as professional athletes have and always will be role models in society, especially to young children. It matters not if the person is a Division I superstar or a D-III star, he or she is still an athlete that youngsters look up to.

Whether Dameon Ross knows it or not, the few minutes he spent chatting with a nine year old boy who was awe-struck after his performance against Lincoln University last season has made him a "hero".

Let me give you yet another example of an SSU athlete that is a role model in the community. SSU senior quarterback Len Annetta has made a great impact on the youth in Salisbury. I can't count the number of times a child has indicated that he/she admired Len, but there is one incident that will always stick in my mind. On Halloween, a five year old boy dressed up as a football player and when asked who he was, said, "I am #12." When asked what team number 12 played for, his response was, "You know, he's the one who plays at the college." After realizing he was talking about Len, I asked him why he chose Len. His reason was, "He's awesome, he throws the ball and he can do anything, I mean anything."

Dick Schultz, former director of the NCAA who spoke at the sports banquet last spring, summed up what it means to be an athlete. . . "I can promise you that whether it is here at Salisbury State or at home, there are younger people watching everything you do. They want to walk like you do, talk like you do and do things the same way you do. That is an awesome responsibility to be a positive role model."

Now I would like to pose my question... "Should the media be a catalyst for exposing drug use in athletics?" In other words should the media bring to light the undesirable side of our "role models?" Personally I feel it is a journalist's responsibility to report the news—good or bad, happy or sad—to the public.

Nonetheless, I can guarantee you that when it came to light that my all-time favorite athlete had an alcohol problem, I was furious. How could this be, my hero, my idol of eight years? There was just no way that Chris Mullin could have this problem. I thought the biggest problem he faced was in 1985 when St. John's was playing Big East foe Georgetown in the final four.

But realistically, I knew it was the media's responsibility to report his downfall. I still think the world of Mullin, and even more so because he overcame his problem. But at the time I could have crucified the media.

It was not until 1986 that the media really started to crack down and focus on drug abuse in the sports world. Don't get me wrong, there were many athletes who abused drugs before 1986. Take Sam McDowell, who played in the major leagues from 1961-1975. He abused drugs and his career was in shambles, yet such stories were not splattered all over the front page of newspapers and magazines.

But thanks to Len Bias, Don Rodgers, Brian Bosworth, Ben Johnson, Gary McClain and Benji Ramirez, terms such as cocaine, crack, heroin and anabolic steroids have become commonplace in the vocabulary of our society, including children.

When Bias died on June 19, 1986, just two days after the world champion Boston Celtics made him the number two (continued on page 14)

Athletes and drugs; what's the answer?

NBA draft pick. Americans everywhere became aware of the consequences of drug use. Newspapers, radio stations and TV stations across the country publicized the investigation into Bias' death. Then just eight days after Bias overdosed, and one day before his own wedding, Don Rodgers of the Cleveland Browns suffered a cocaine induced death. And even though Rodgers' death was not as highly publicized as Bias' was, it became apparent that the media would no longer turn its back on drug use.

In 1987, Gary McClain, a member of the 1985 Villanova NCAA championship team, sold his story to Sports Illustrated. He revealed that he was high on cocaine in the Wildcat's first game of the the 1985 final four against the Memphis State Tigers, as well as in the championship game against the Georgetown Hoyas.

Another major story that broke in 1987 zeroed in on college football's Orange Bowl and Oklahoma linebacker Brian Bosworth. Bosworth tested positive for steroid use, thus causing the NCAA to ban him from participating in the post-season game.

Benji Ramirez, a former high school defensive tackle from Ashtabula, Ohio, died from a heart defect which was apparently a direct cause of steroid abuse. And finally, who could forget Ben Johnson, a Canadian sprinter and world record holder who played a key role in turning NBC's coverage of the 1988 Olympic games into a drug task force.

And there are others. Scott Skiles, Jay Edwards, Derrick Fenner, Dexter Manley all have been involved in drug scandals.

Every day, America learns of another "role model" who has fallen prey to the lure of drugs. Yet, is this publicity really helping society understand the effects drugs can have on anyone and not just athletes?

The media has and will continue to make everyone aware of the serious drug problems that face us daily in all sports at all levels. Unfortunately, the media is not capable of finding a solution to this problem. However, the media may be able to persuade future generations by informing them of the potential dangers and consequences that are associated with the use of enhancing drugs and illegal substances.

And as for the quote? Ironically, it was written by Len Bias in high school. In his celebration of the NBA draft, he forgot his declaration and responsibility as a role model. His tragedy was in not practicing what he preached. He showed Americans young and old a pretty good reason to not use drugs.

While athletes like Len Bias may continue to use drugs and damage their bodies, the real crime occurs when the media fails to inform the public of the problems in today's society.

Women's basketball goes 4-5

by Josh LeBaron, Staff Writer

For most Salisbury State University students, winter break was a time to go home and relax for a while. This was not the case for the women's basketball team, however. They stayed on campus, and battled their way to a 4-5 record over the winter term.

The Gulls threw together some all-star performances in their four wins. Senior point guard Jenn Shelley scored a career-high 20 points in the last home game of her career as SSU topped Wesley 73-57. Shelley also added three assists and four steals in the win.

Junior center Kim Roth is closing in on the 1,000 rebound mark for her career. After a 20 rebound night in a loss to Rowan College, Roth tallied a total of 922 boards. Roth's 15.3 rebounds per game ranks her second in the most recent NCAA statistics. Roth is also leading the team in scoring at 15.8 points per game, and has posted a double-double in 17 of 18 games this season.

Another player who has quickly become a star for SSU is freshman guard Kristi Kauffman.

This 5-8 freshman from Sinking Spring, PA has started in 15 of 16 games, and is second on the team in scoring with 15.2 ppg and third in rebounding with 5.4 rpg.

Kauffman was recently named ECAC Rookie-of-the-Week. She scored 57 points and grabbed 24 rebounds in a three game stretch for the Gulls to earn the honor.

After scoring 17 and 13 points in two losses, Kauffman followed up with a career-best 27 point performance in a 76-61 loss to Frostburg State.

The team just played in the Marymount tournament this past weekend, and have two more games left in the season. They face Wesley on February 16 and Cabrini on the 21st. Both are away games.

Gull Takes

Dameon Ross scored 21 points and grabbed 8 rebounds while Kyle Jefferson added 19 points and 8 rebounds as the Salisbury State men's basketball team posted an 88-80 win against rival Frostburg State on January 29. The Seagulls improved their record to 7-10 with this win. Ross and Jefferson led the Gulls to their third win in a row with an 86-81 win against Lincoln (13-7) as both scored 24 points. SSU also got 12 points each from Tom Wolfe and Casey Musick. Lincoln saw good performances from Tyrone Tyson and Derick Spence as they both chipped in 17 points.

Graduation Application Deadline

All undergraduate students who plan to complete degree requirements in Dec. 1994 or Winter 1995 must complete an Application for Diploma in the Office of the Registrar by Fri., March 4, 1994. The University no longer requires a graduation fee.

All applications must be approved by the chairperson of the student's major department. The purpose of this early application deadline is to allow time for each senior's records to be reviewed in detail prior to their last semester of attendance at the University, and this insures that students are aware of their academic status early enough to make any last minute adjustments to their plan of study.

Please return your completed Application for Diploma to the Office of the Registrar, Holloway Hall 145, or mail it to the Office of the Registrar, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Ave., Salisbury, Md 21801.

Educational Rights and Privacy Act

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 gives students the right to inspect and review educational records maintained by the University. Additionally, a student may request the amendment of that record that the student believes to be inaccurate, misleading, or otherwise in violation of the student's privacy. Students maintain the right of consent to disclosures of personally identifiable information contained in the records of the student.

Salisbury State University will assume the right, under the provisions of this Act, to provide student directory information found in a student's educational record without prior consent of the student. For such purposes, directory information is defined as the student's name, address, telephone number, date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, the most recent previous educational institution attended and other similar information. In the event a student desires more or less directory information released, the student should notify the Office of the Dean of Students in Rm. 212 of the University Center.

Students have the right to file any complaints about alleged failure to comply with Privacy Act requirements with the U.S. Department of Education. Copies of the Salisbury State University policy can be obtained in the Dean of Student's Office.

Student Handbook

The Office of the Dean of Students has published a Student Handbook for the 1993-94 academic year. The Handbook includes information on campus programs and services, student organizations and community resources. The Handbook also features a 1993-94 calendar which includes intramural sign-up deadlines, athletic events, special events on campus and important academic deadlines.

Handbooks are available at the Dean of Students Office and the University Center Information Desk during the year.

Student Health Insurance

Evidence of health insurance is not required in order to enroll for classes at Salisbury State University. Staff in the University Health Center recommend that you have health insurance coverage by obtaining this coverage on your parent's/family's policy, or by contacting an insurance company of your choice for information and possible enrollment in a plan. There is no health insurance policy available through the University.

The Economics of the Citibank Classic Visa card. How no annual fee, student discounts and Price Protection create upward growth.

A variety of factors have been suggested as contributing to the economic growth of students, including (1) more lottery winners between the ages of 18 and 22, (2) a 37% increase on earnings from bottle and can returns, (3) more students doubling earnings in the lightning round of game shows, and (4) the Citibank Classic Visa® card. It's this last one, however, that affects most students. ¶ The Citibank Classic Visa card offers immediate savings to student cardmembers. You can now receive the Citibank Classic card with No Annual Fee. You can capitalize on a $20 Airfare Discount for domestic flights,¹ a low variable interest rate of 15.4%,² as well as savings on mail order purchases, sports equipment, music and magazines. One might even have enough savings to reinvest in a

No known picture of Washington smiling exists. Economists believe Washington was unhappy because he felt he could have received a better deal on our supplies. If he used a Citibank Classic Visa card, he would have been assured of getting the best price and probably would have been happier. (Artist's rendering of how he would have appeared on the dollar.)

CD or two (the musical kind, of course). ¶ On the way to the record store, or any store for that matter, take stock of the 3 services concerned with purchases made on the Citibank Classic card. Citibank Price Protection assures one of the best prices. See the same item advertised in print for less, within 60 days, and Citibank will refund the difference up to $150.³ Buyers Security™ can cover these investments against accidental damage, fire or theft (ordinarily causes for Great Depressions) for 90 days from the date of purchase.³ And Citibank Lifetime Warranty™ can extend the warranty for the expected service life of eligible products up to 12 years.⁴ ¶ But perhaps the features which offer the best protection are your eyes, your nose, your mouth, etc.—all featured on The Photocard, the credit card with your photo on it. Carrying it can help prevent fraud or any hostile takeover of your card. (Insiders speculate that it makes quite a good student ID, too.) Even if one's card is stolen, or perhaps lost, The Lost Wallet™ Service can replace your card usually within 24 hours. ¶ So never panic. As we all know, panic, such as in the Great Panics of 1837, 1857 and 1929 can cause a downswing in a market. But with 24-hour Customer Service, there's no reason for it. A question about your account is only an 800 number away. (Panic of the sort experienced the night before Finals is something else again.) ¶ Needless to say, building a credit history with the support of such services can only be a boost. You're investing in futures—that future house, that future car, etc. And knowing the Citibank Classic Visa card is there in your wallet should presently give you a sense of security, rare in today's—how shall we say?—fickle market. ¶ To apply, call. Students don't need a job or a cosigner. And call if you'd simply like your photo added to your regular Citibank Classic Visa card. Here's the number: 1-800-CITIBANK, extension 19. (1-800-248-4226). ¶ The Law of Student Supply and Demand states, "If a credit card satisfies more of a student's unlimited wants and needs, while reducing the Risk Factor in respect to limited and often scarce resources—with the greatest supply of services and savings possible—then students will demand said credit card." So, demand away—call.
